MILLIONAIRE HELD AS WHITE SLAVER

COBB FREE IN BONDS OF $25,000

President William Cobb of the Colateral Loan Company was released this afternoon on bail furnished by the New England Casualty Company, for the required amount of $25,000.

COLONEL CHARLES AL. ALEXANDER of Providence, who says white slave charge is part of a blackmail plot.

THE MODERN ALEXANDER

Here is the poem the United States District Attorney at Chicago says Millionaire Alexander wrote for Helen Cope, whom he is accused of taking from Los Angeles to Chicago. It is entitled "The Modern Alexander."

Alexander of the sides says was said to say: "I was born to conquer and to keep. But in these latter, better days of peace and politics, I know the modern tricks."

SCHOONER ASHORE OFF TUCKERNUCK

A six-masted schooner was reported ashore this afternoon off Tucker's Island, southwest of Nantucket. The schooner was said to be in great danger, because of heavy seas and a predicted northeast storm.

Scores Imperilled by New York Bomb

NEW YORK, Dec. 5.—Scores of lives were imperilled early today by a fire which is believed to have been started by the explosion of a bomb placed in the hat factory at No. 211 Third street, Jersey City.

STARTLING CHARGE BY 'BIG GIRL'

Many circles of society, club and business life in New England were jarred to their centers today by the news that Colonel Charles Alexander, elderly banker, manufacturer and cooperation figure of Providence, is charged in a federal indictment from Illinois district with violation of the Mann White Slave act in transporting Miss Jessie E. Cope from Los Angeles to Chicago for improper purposes.

After the indictment had been voted in Chicago, Colonel Alexander was arrested in Providence, arraigned, pleaded not guilty and held in $7,500 for his appearance before the Chicago jury early in January.

The arrest of Colonel Alexander is a staggering shock to Providence. Making the situation peculiarly ironic in that city is the fact that only recently Colonel Alexander served as foreman on a Federal Grand Jury for Rhode Island which heard evidence regarding violations of the latter laws. The Grand Jury returned indictments against the officers of race of the biggest buttone concern in the country, and Colonel Alexander, as foreman of the jury, handed the indictments to the clerk of the court with impressive solemnity.

MILLIONAIRE CELEBRITY.
The Colonel is sixty-seven years old, is estimated to be worth $2,000,000, belongs to all the big social and financial men's clubs in Rhode Island and to some outside of Rhode Island, has a wife and two daughters who

TRIAL OF ALLEN DUDLEY OPENED

BOSTON, Mass., Dec. 5.—Three jurors were selected in an hour at the opening session today of the trial of Dr. Lester E. Dudley, who is charged with the murder of Mildred Sullivan, the seventeen-year-old Boston school girl. Dr. Dudley was put on trial alone. It was first of the four defendants alleged to have had a hand in the murder and brutal plot.

All persons under twenty-one years of age were excluded from the courtroom. This was done to prevent school girls from hearing the revolting details.

Dr. Dudley heard a jury prosecutor Allen Dudley guilty of first degree murder for slaying his daughter, Miss Emma Jensen, last June. This morning life for the young farmer. The reading of the verdict ended the work of unseemly the Dudley jury five minutes.

WOMEN PACK GALLERIES.
The Dudley was brought into the court room at 10:30. The room was filled with women and women packed the galleries. The corridors were a solid mass of men and women.

Dudley looked only pale. He was immediately driven to the State House, where he was held in custody. His wife, Mrs. Dudley, was held in custody. His wife, Mrs. Dudley, was held in custody.

127th DAY OF THE WAR

As Told in Today's Official Dispatches.

FRENCH OFFICIAL STATEMENT.
PARIS, Dec. 5.—To the north of the Lys, we have realized appreciable progress. Our infantry, attacking at dawn, took with a single charge two lines of trenches. The gain was 500 metres. A portion of the hamlet of Wulderdrecht, one kilometre northwest of Langemark, remains in our hands. Before Poesse, half way between Dinant and Vervins, we have taken on the right bank of the canal, a road runner over which there had been sharp fighting for a month.

The enemy has tried without success, with a violent attack of heavy artillery to force us to evacuate the ground we have won. In the region of Arras and in the Champagne district there have been intermittent cannonades here and there. Nothing has been accomplished with particular intensity.

For our part we have destroyed with our artillery numerous earthworks. In the Artois region the fighting is very hot all the time. We have captured numerous trenches and have repulsed all counter attacks. In Lorraine and in Alsace there is nothing important to report.

GERMAN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.
BERLIN, Dec. 5.—(By wireless.) Headquarters reports that all French attacks in West Flanders and south of Metz on Friday were repulsed.

We have made progress near Labasse, in the Artois district, and southwest of Altkirch.

AUSTRIAN OFFICIAL STATEMENT.
VIENNA via Berlin and Amsterdam, Dec. 5.—There has been a further advance of the Austrian army of invasion in northern Serbia. The Serbians are not making any resistance. We took 100 prisoners without any fighting.

To the west and southwest of Aradjele Plain the Serbians are making fierce attacks.

TURKISH OFFICIAL STATEMENT.
CONSTANTINOPLE via Sofia, Berlin and Amsterdam, Dec. 5.—Our advance northwest continues without check. We have diverted troops in the direction of Aradjele, where the Russians are in retreat.

Edirne is on the Black Sea, 160 miles west of Tiflis and fifteen miles inland the Russian border. Aradjele is sixty miles southeast of Edirne.

A daring daylight robbery was committed in Salem today when Nelson Hanks, a well-known Lynn contractor, was held up and robbed of $100 in money by two unknown men in a former barn on the outskirts of the burned district in Salem.

A riot rill was quelled in Haverhill and Peabody.

After three more shots of Hanks, one of which passed through his hat, the men made good their escape. Thick woods nearby are now surrounded by police of Salem and Lynn.

Hanks told the police that the two men called at his office yesterday in Own An Automobile—It's Easy!

When the average man thinks of an automobile his mind immediately conjures the picture of a huge amount of money. He has the wrong idea. Automobiles slightly used can be bought for almost any sum a person is prepared to pay above two or three hundred dollars. The cost of maintenance—if a man has a little mechanical ingenuity—is very light. He can be quickly taught to drive and with a little savings on his back he can keep his car going as cheaply as he can feed a horse. Some men do it for less. A great variety of all the important news of automobiles for sale at reduced prices will be found in the Want Ad pages of the American each week day and Sunday. It appears under the heading "Used Cars and Automobiles" and is sufficiently brief this classification carefully and continuously. You'll be sure to secure just the car you want. However, if you desire upon immediate action, write an ad of your own. When it is ready leave it with any of the American's Want Ad Stations, the Branch Office at 234 Washington Street, Main Office at 80 Summer Street, or

Fall of 'Wolf' Lamar Marks End of Wall Street Pirates

By B. C. FORBES.

Wall Street used to be a dangerous place, full of wild beasts—wolves, sharks, lions, bears, etc.—and desperate characters—buccaners, pirates, and the like. But the wild animals and the desperadoes are disappearing.

"The Wolf of Wall Street," one of the most notorious of 'em all, has been sentenced to be caged behind iron bars for two years.

David Lamar, "The Wolf," has infected the financial district for almost a generation. He invariably worked in the dark. He always sought to cover his tracks. His doings were gutteranean. Usually the Street knew nothing of what he was up to until his coup had been completed. Some of the stories told of him are not complimentary, to use mild language. The present J. P. Morgan characterized him as "vermin," and Wall Street gave Mr. Morgan credit for selecting his language with taste and discrimination.

The conviction of 'The Wolf of Wall Street' for subtly trying to inveigle J. P. Morgan & Co. into his clutches by impersonating powerful politicians at the distant end of a telephone wire marks the close of a picturesque, if discreditable, chapter in Wall Street's history. There is not one of Lamar's type left. The few heavyweight buccaneers who still survive are in retirement at present, nor are they likely to find conditions propitious in the future for their old bandit games.

Wall Street is about to enter a new and cleaner era.

The financial atmosphere has been greatly purged.

Dishonesty has been found a shortsighted policy.

To "fleece the lambs" is now recognized as an unprofitable form of business for those who want to stay

The Stock Exchange broker no

The broker today realizes that if he is to make money—and go on making money—he must do his best to enable his clients to make profits, for the victim who goes broke can pay no more commissions.

Commission houses now spend thousands upon thousands of dollars every year in collecting information solely for the benefit of their customers. The better they can post their customers the greater the opportunities for profits—and the larger the profits the greater the number of commissions.

In the wicked old days, when Captain Kidds of finance filled the newspapers with their exploits, brokers frequently worked hand in glove with them, willingly beguiling "the lambs" into the market at the wrong time and then shearing them remorselessly.

When Commodore Vanderbilt, Jay Gould, Jay Cooke, Daniel Drew, Jim Fiske and other notables were neck-deep in daring speculative ventures, outsiders who were foolish enough to enter the fray invariably got caught. The insiders played with loaded dice, since they had a monopoly of information, and, moreover, could build up or wreck a railroad, as suited their purpose.

Today no reputable broker would deliberately mislead his customers to play into the hands of any financial freebooter. The broker works for his clients; he does not "work" them.

Wall Street is destined to become less and less of a Monte Carlo and more and more of an investment centre, a market for the safe employment of savings. Publicity is the most effective weapon ever forged against the secret machinations of powerful, unscrupulous insiders. And this weapon is to become stronger year by year.

Let it not be imagined that "Wall Street" harbors no crooks. There are still two or three masked black-mailers at work. There are still a few gangs of the George Graham Rice variety. There are still a number of so-called "brokers" whose aim is to rob their members of the public, but they can be avoided by the simple expedient of refusing to do a penny's worth of business with any broker who is not a member of the Stock Exchange, the Consolidated Exchange or the Curb Exchange. There are still occasional bucketshops. But the public need no longer be swindled by these impostors.

The management of the Stock Exchange was never on a higher plane than it is today. And the Association

CHURCH NEWS OF GREATER BOSTON

In St. Paul's Cathedral, at 10 a. m., Friday, December 11, Bishop Lawrence will hold a special conference with his flock to consider matters bearing upon the European war and the relation of the Christian churches to the time.

The service will be a celebration of the Holy Communion, with an address by the Bishop. Following this will be a service for business men, consisting of special prayers and intercessions, with an address by the Rev. F. J. Tomlinson, D. D., pastor of the Trinity Church, Philadelphia.

The service in the afternoon at 2:30 will be for both men and women, and the address will be given by the Rev. A. M. Sherman of Hanson, China, and Rev. Dr. Tomlinson.

Rev. William Sullivan of All Souls Church, New York, will conduct all day of next week's Sunday services in King's Chapel, from Monday to Thursday inclusive. These services begin at 11 o'clock and are continued at 12:30.

Rev. William Sullivan, D.D., pastor of the People's Temple, former Methodist minister, Episcopal Church in New England, was born in Turkey and came to this country when young. Since his arrival he began his studies for the ministry. His strong administrative ability, coupled with his earnest evangelical preaching, has attracted to him a large number of representative church workers.

At the Episcopalian House of Bishops, which will convene in New York City on Monday, December 14, the Rev. F. J. Tomlinson, D. D., of Philadelphia, will be one of the speakers. He will address the convention on the subject of "The Christian Church in the World." The convention will also consider the report of the committee on the European war.

BOSTON AMERICAN

10 AND 12 SUMMIT ST., BOSTON, MASS. 1914

"Woman Suffrage a State Affair," Says President Wilson

Is JUSTICE a Local or National Question, Mr. President?

Woman suffrage is a question involving justice, decent treatment of women, or it is NOTHING.

The President of the United States has just told advocates of woman suffrage that they must not come to him or to the national leaders, because WOMAN SUFFRAGE IS A STATE MATTER.

The President, apparently, classes woman suffrage with minor details of legislation, such as the regulation of dog pounds, back alleys, straying cattle, etc.

We think the President ought to be persuaded to take a higher view of the woman suffrage question and its meaning.

Men as wise as Mr. Wilson had to deal with the question of votes for negroes at the end of our war.

They thought the question of votes for negroes sufficiently serious to be treated NATIONALLY.

And before the war began Abraham Lincoln thought that the question of JUSTICE FOR THE NEGRO was sufficiently big to be treated NATIONALLY.

Abraham Lincoln did not say that the negro question was local and not to bother HIM about it. And we think that Mr. Wilson ought not to say that the woman suffrage question is local and, "Don't bother ME about it."

Certainly the question of votes for women, for all the intelligent, protesting, earnest and capable women of the United States, is as important as was the question of votes for negroes when the war ended.

And certainly the question of JUSTICE to women, justice to one-half of the population of the United States, is at least as important as was the question of justice to negroes.

Mr. Wilson, like certain other statesmen, is unable as yet to make up his mind that the intelligent, protesting women of the United States are really important or worthy of especial notice.

He may change his attitude if he will consult with his earnest friend, William Jennings Bryan.

The latter not so long ago held Mr. Wilson's opinion about women. But recently he has jumped over the suffrage fence, enthusiastically landing on all fours, and saying most kindly that whatever is not too good for HIM is not too good for his wife.

We wish Mr. Bryan would give Mr. Wilson a few lessons in practical politics, if in nothing better.

Before long even practical politics will lead to woman suffrage by the straight road of selfishness, and then we shall see Mr. Wilson following Mr. Bryan over the fence.

Neutrality and Popular Songs

The Navy Department has prohibited the singing of "It's a Long, Long Way to Tipperary" by the bluejackets as a breach of neutrality. This is emphatically the day of small things in the Navy Department. Wonder if all Europe barred "There'll Be a Hot Time in the Old Town Tonight," to which our soldiers went into battle in the Spanish War? Our national song, "My Country 'Tis of Thee," probably meets the official idea of neutrality, as we stole the air from the English, who for their part had stolen it from the Germans.

The extreme punctilio of the administration on matters involving the most trivial or even wholly imaginary infractions of neutrality is perhaps somewhat inspired by a desire to divert public attention from really serious factors shown to one of the belligerents—as in the recent effort of the State Department to impose the allies' will in Ecuador and Colombia.

SUN WORSHIPPERS

By JANE MLEAN

BAREHEADED and with wide blue eyes,
Half hidden in the blue,
With grimy little knees apart
And dirty fingers, too,
A row of mud pies left to dry,
They glimpse a golden butterfly.

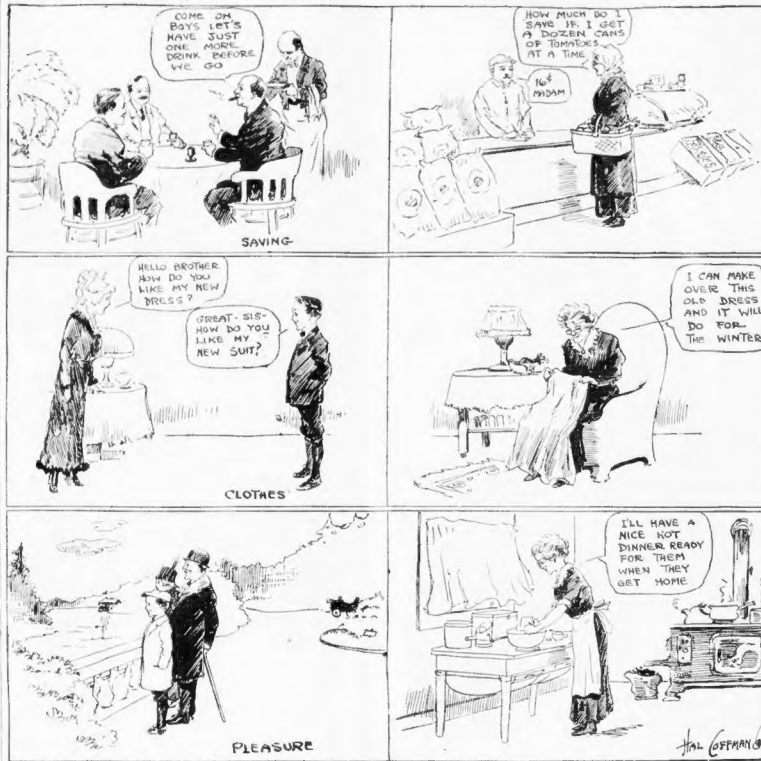

Close to the setting of the sun
They chase the bit of gold
Into the calm, still port of rest,
Where sleepy dreams unfold
And butterflies, unchased, unwon,
Circle about tomorrow's sun.

The Family And Mother

Bread or Whiskey?

By ELBERT HUBBARD

IN the United States the manufacture and sale of strong drink is licensed and under the direct control of the government. Instead of supervising the manufacture and sale of strong drink, Russia cut out the middleman and monopolized the business. In Russia strong drink was manufactured by the government and sold by the government direct to the consumer.

A short time ago something occurred in Russia, seemingly unconnected, that did for the nation what centuries of argument and agitation have been unable to do, say, for Great Britain or America.

A man arose in the Duma and said: "I hold in my hand an official report showing that the government now owns and has stored in warehouses and elevators rye, wheat and oats to the extent of over one hundred million bushels. This grain was purchased for the manufacture of vodka. It is apparent that if we use this grain for the manufacture of vodka we cannot use it for bread."

"The deciding factor in this great war in which we are engaged will be famine; that is, the country that has the greatest food supply will eventually win. If we use our grain for vodka we cannot use it for bread. I, therefore, hereby introduce a bill providing that the government shall cease the manufacture and sale of spirituous liquors in every form; that it shall also prohibit the manufacture and sale of strong drink, and that, on penalty, no grain or other food substance shall be used in this country by any one, under any condition, for the manufacture of strong drink."

And behold! the bill was passed and duly received the signature of the Czar.

It was several days before the thinking men of Russia awoke to the fact that they had put into operation one of the greatest, most far-reaching and beneficent laws ever enacted.

It all turned on the matter of economics. The question was: We have this grain. Shall we use it for bread or shall we use it for whiskey? And in Russia's time of trial there was only one answer to this question. The Russian people said: "We vote for bread!" Now, suppose we take this question home to ourselves.

In your pay envelope is twenty-five dollars. What are you going to do with this money? Are you going to spend it for strong drink? If you are a married man are you going to spend this money for liquor, or are you going to buy shoes for the babies, books, slates, pencils, pads of writing paper for your boys and girls who are going to school?

Are you going to buy a clock, a rug, a chair, a table, curtains for the windows, or are you going to spend the money for strong drink? Just a matter of common sense, just a matter of deciding between this and that—is it bread or vodka?

Does liquor add to your length of days, to your efficiency, to your thinking power? Does it make your employer prize your services more?

Are you more apt to get an increase in wages if you drink? Are you a better citizen? Does your wife urge you to drink whiskey? Are you more to your old father and mother?

How are you going to use the money in the envelope? Is it whiskey, or bread, books, clothes, a savings bank account and a home?

Let your common sense decide and then stand by your resolution.

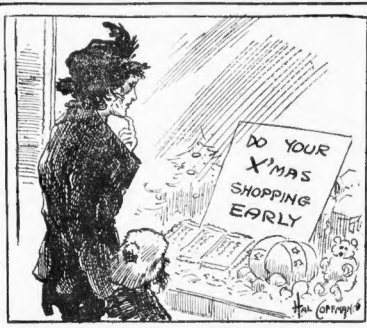

Letters from American Readers

HELPING THE POOR
Editor Boston American:—Praise God from whom all blessings flow, would be sung by the poor of America if they were as generously provided for as they are in Europe. I think after this war is over they will say: "We didn't ask you for any of your help." It would be better for our generous people to give to some poor woman that is trying to save a home from being taken away from her.

Charity DOES begin at home.

DESTINY

By PHILIP J. HALVOGA

Curled by a deep's lust for earthly power,
That fans the flames of bigotry and hate,
Where millions in blood-reddied shambles wait
A gruesome grave, while bursting shall the hour
That toll that late the cruel hand of fate
Blot out the light of centuries, too late
Shall craven monarchs aim to still the shower
Of war-winged death, or save their kingly state.

Puppets of chance, with passing pairs to play,
Why blindly boast that Heaven hath decreed
This bestial slaughter pen of old-world greed?
Behind those gory mists are hid today
The mothers of the race, who cannot feed
Their suckling babes, as laggard-eyed they plead
"Unto their God by mailed hands to pray."
And the bath hearkened to their tales of need.

Weakling, thrust from the great womb of time,
Let Slav or Teuton, lowly Serb or Hun
But sense the glory of your rising sun
Of human liberty, the plan sublime,
And this red-chaos tides and thine begun
Shall and the hellish away, thy race be run,
Thy seed forever lost in every clime,
And thou, forgot, when all-forsall is won.

Theodore Roosevelt Says This Country Is PARTLY Responsible for the Frightful Wrongs That Have Been Committed in Mexico

And No Resident of New England Who Wants to Know the TRUTH About Mexico Should Fail to Read the Former President's Page Article in Tomorrow's Sunday AMERICAN

Colonel Theodore Roosevelt, the most conspicuous American in private life, has written a page article on "Our Responsibility in Mexico."

This paper by the former President will appear in full in the SUNDAY AMERICAN for tomorrow. WE COMMENT IT TO EVERY NEW ENGLANDER WHO WANTS THE TRUTH ABOUT CONDITIONS IN MEXICO.

Mr. Roosevelt writes of acts of the soldiers of Villa and Carranza. The United States, he says, is partially and guiltily responsible for:

The violation of scores of nuns and American women.
The murder of priests and others in cold blood.
The wholesale robbery and expulsion of priests and nuns.

The sacking of schools, institutions of learning and libraries, and the destruction of astronomical apparatus and valuable machinery.

The profanation of churches and sacred vessels "in a thousand ways," including "orgies of the soldiers and their women before and around the altars," and the "throwing of the Sacred Host into the feed of the soldiers' horses!"

Is any American going to say that what they do in Mexico is no concern of ours, particularly in view of the fact that President Wilson and Mr. Bryan have made it very much our concern? Consider the words with which Theodore Roosevelt closes his contribution to the SUNDAY AMERICAN:

What I have above stated is but a small part of the immense mass of facts available to President Wilson and Secretary Bryan, had they cared to examine them. They relate to outrages on Catholics. This is merely because the enormous majority of the religious people of Mexico are Catholics.

I should set their forth just as minutely if they had been inflicted by Catholics on Freethinkers or Protestants or Moslems—I am myself both a Protestant and a Mason.

Even if we had no responsibility for them, I nevertheless fail to see how any American could read the account of them without a feeling of burning indignation. As things actually are, shame must be mingled with our indignation; for the action of President Wilson and Secretary Bryan has been such as to make this country partly responsible for the frightful wrongs that have been committed.

First and last, we have read a lot about Mexico and the Mexican "patriots," but we have seen nothing, and YOU have seen nothing, to compare in interest with the array of facts gathered and presented by former President Roosevelt.
